6:30 – 8:30 pm	Dinner Briefing at the camp with Daniel Sopia, CEO of the Maasai Mara Wildlife Conservancies Association (MMWCA) on the importance of community conservancies in the region Representatives of the Kenya Wildlife Conservancies Association and the Maasai Mara Wildlife Conservancies Association will brief the delegation. The Maasai Mara is Kenya's most important wildlife and tourism area. Roughly 25% of Kenya's wildlife resides within the greater Maasai Mara region, a 4,500 km² wildlife landscape comprised of the 1,510 km² Maasai Mara National Reserve (MMNR) and 3,000 km² of adjacent community and private lands. This area includes the key dry season range for the largest animal migration left on Earth. The long-term conservation of this ecosystem depends on choices made by the Maasai and other landowners who control two-thirds of the greater Mara. Since the 1970s, when Maasai communal lands were subdivided into individual parcels, farming, settlements, and fencing have spread significantly, leading to the loss of more than half of all wildlife in the Mara between 1977 and 2001.

In the face of these challenges, local Maasai landowners and innovative tourism operators have joined together over the past decade to create conservancies on private lands across the Mara ecosystem. Conservancies are formed by pooling hundreds of individual properties into larger wildlife, tourism and livestock management entities, connecting otherwise increasingly fragmented landscapes. The conservancy landowners receive a monthly lease payment from tour operators using the area. Conservancies are managed by stakeholder conservancy boards, representing landowners and tourism partners.

There are now 15 conservancies in the greater Maasai Mara, covering 1,394 km² and increasing the region's total protected area coverage from 33% to 64%. The conservancies support the livelihoods of approximately 13,500 households, or an estimated 100,000 people. Lease fees paid to conservancy landowners totaled $7.5 million in 2017, demonstrating the potential for wildlife conservation to generate significant local economic returns. Conservancy governance structures bring transparency and increase participation in lease structures and benefit sharing. Benefits extend beyond the lease payments, with 1,600 people – mostly residents of the Mara – employed at nearly 50 conservancy-based tourism camps, while more than 250 conservancy-employed rangers help protect wildlife across the landscape.

Though still relatively new, conservancies are starting to show exciting conservation promise, providing critical habitat for a range of key species and leading to local wildlife recoveries in some areas. Recent research demonstrates, for example, that lion densities in the conservancies are actually higher than in the Maasai Mara National Reserve itself.

Day 3, Saturday, August 17th:

Topics: Community Conservancies

6:30am-10:00am

Breakfast briefing in the field with Mara Predator Hub staff on Mara Predator Conservation and the Big Cat Project

The Maasai Mara ecosystem contains globally significant populations of large predators, including lions, cheetahs, wild dogs, leopards and others. Understanding how these species interact on the landscape is fundamental to ensuring their long-term survival. The Mara Predator Conservation Program, a project of the Kenya Wildlife Trust, conducts targeted research to understand the dynamics of predator populations, assesses threats such species face (e.g., from agricultural encroachment, habitat fragmentation, poisoning and unsustainable tourism) and engages stakeholders in strategies for reducing human/wildlife conflict. The MPCP works across the Mara ecosystem in both the Maasai Mara National Reserve and the community conservancies that ring it. Its initial work has focused on lions and cheetahs. A new project on wild dogs has just been launched.

The Mara Naboisho Big Cat Project brings together community, researchers, NGOs, and Tourism Partners in Naboisho Conservancy in an effort to help secure the future of the Big Cats (lion, cheetah, and leopard). Currently the project has four major components: tracking, research, conflict mitigation, and community education. ICCF staff will discuss illegal wildlife trafficking challenges in Kenya and the broader region, as well as implications for national and regional security.

11:00 am-12:00 pm Field visit to the Koyiaki Guiding School to be briefed by Principal Morris Nabaala

The Koyiaki Guiding School's mission is to provide education to local Maasai youth in the tourism industry and responsible land use thereby providing employment opportunities and promoting and encouraging conservation of the unique Maasai Mara ecosystem in general and the Koiyaki-Lemek conservation areas in particular.

1:00 pm-2:30 pm Lunch briefing: Building Next Generation Impact Across the Maasai Mara's Community Conservancies

Mission participants will be briefed by park staff and experts from Kenya Wildlife Trust about the Building Next Generation Impact Across the Maasai Mara's Community Conservancies project, which seeks to: (1) strengthen and integrate management across the various conservancies; (2) enable the conservancies to become durable engines for local economic development through innovative, environmentally responsible tourism and livestock production; and (3) improve communications among key local stakeholders, including landowners, tourism partners, wildlife managers, and others.

3:00 pm-5:00 pm Guided hike with Roelof Schutte, chief walking guide for Asilia, and Allan Earnshaw, Kenya Wildlife Trust.

Roelof will brief the delegation on the ecological value of biodiversity and its importance for the livelihoods of local communities as it provides ecosystem services and bases for tourism and income generation. Camp rangers will also discuss the challenges and successes of biodiversity conservation efforts within the Masai Mara Reserve and neighboring Serengeti National Park and observe the physical manifestations of the detriments of biodiversity loss and the benefits of biodiversity strength.

6:00 pm-8:00 pm Dinner briefing in the field with Allan Earnshaw, Kenya Wildlife Trust

Allan is a fourth generation Kenyan whose family came to Kenya in 1896. A Partner and Director of Ker Downey Safaris since 1980, he is also a member of several other environment and conservation boards in addition to KWT, including the Kenya Private Sector Alliance and the Kenya Tourism Federation.

He is also a former Board member of the Kenya Wildlife Service. Allan's key conservation goal is the creation of an independent national association of wildlife Conservancies that will include community and private landowners, the appropriate government institutions, the private sector and relevant NGOs.

Accommodations: Naboisho Camp

Day 4, Sunday, August 18th:

Topics: Community Projects; Biodiversity in the Masai Mara

The Maa Trust is a non-profit organization based in community-owned conservancies in the Maasai Mara, Kenya. They work to increase the benefits of wildlife and conservation to Maasai families so that they appreciate, and contribute to, the protection of wild animals on their land, and they aim to unite communities by involving them in conservation at a management level.

The Honorable Chris Coons
and Michael Coons
United States Senate
Washington, DC

Dear Senator Coons and Michael,

We are pleased to invite you to join a U.S. Congressional Delegation to visit the Republic of Kenya from August 15 to August 18, 2019, inclusive of travel days.

The purpose of this mission is to educate the delegation about the critical role that conservation and sound natural resource management play in poverty alleviation, sustainable economic development, and regional security for Kenya and other developing countries of the world. The mission will focus on both terrestrial and marine conservation and the role of U.S. investment in the region.

We have extended an invitation to the following Member of Congress and son to join the delegation:

Senator Chris Van Hollen and Nicholas Van Hollen

While in Kenya, the delegation will meet with government officials and leading local and U.S.-based conservation organizations.

Through this mission you will gain a firsthand look at innovative ways that U.S. investment in the region is providing invaluable support to the region's biodiversity conservation and management efforts while strengthening the ability of local people and organizations to manage and conserve species, habitats, and ecological processes, both marine and terrestrial.

The delegation will also learn about important issues relating to Kenya and East Africa, including collaboration with nongovernmental organizations, research centers, communities, and other stakeholders, to facilitate the protection of these land- and seascapes. No portion of the course or trip is financed by a lobbyist or a registered foreign agent.

Thank you for taking the time to learn more about this remarkable part of the world and the efforts that are underway to ensure its conservation for the benefit of local communities and the world at large for this and future generations.

Attached you will find general background information about the International Conservation Caucus Foundation and a brief working itinerary.

We look forward to having you join us.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Weis
Program Director
